SHRIMATI RENUKA CHOWDHU-RY: I am concluding, Sir. Regarding the present Ram Janam Bhoomi-Babri Masjid controversy and conflict, nobody can disagree that we are Indians first. I had made a sincere request and recommendation to the then Defence Minister, Mr. K. C. Pant when Mr. Rajiv Gandhi was the Prime Minister that India after independene has not built any monument in memory of the unknown soldier. Subsequently the Indian Army has been overused. We had the Operation Blue-star. We had the IPKF services who have fought with one hand tied behind them. They went in the guest of peace and laid down their lives. No recognition has been given. Let us now declare this property as a tribute to the unknown Indian solider as a symbol of secularism. Let the Hindus and the Muslims who are fighting over this piece of geography of my country unite and come forward for this soldier who is fighting for this India and tricolour. These are just a few suggestions. Last but not the least to concentrate on nation building it has to start from the school level. We should teach our children that they are Indians first and Indians last. Thank you,
